

"Hello, World!"

I'm at a new stage in my life. I'm moving forward in a Full Stack training and I have the HTML, CSS and JavaScript modules completed. I'm constantly studying to get more involved with Angular, React, and Node. Besides, to complete the Frontend environment I got notions of JQuery and Json. From Backend, I understand SQL, PHP (also Laravel), Agile and Scrum Frameworks. I had finished a Full Stack Developer Course in the end of 2019 and since this time, I keep myself motivated with doing exercises through game apps like Mimo app and Grasshopper, and to watch video classes, reading and participating of webinars.

I have a degree in Journalism, and a Master's in Advertising and Public Relations. I have already gone through advertising agencies, I had a startup whose focus was to develop customers within the digital medium through Social Networks and Content Creation. In this case, I am looking for an opportunity to take up an old passion that is programming, an area in which I started to study previously.

I'm really motivated to get involved with programming, to participate in teamworks, to learn and produce the best solutions to the most varied issues. I understand Kanban, Agile, Scrum frameworks and last year I attended a workshop of design thinking. I feel prepared to accept challenges and receptive to news!

I'm able to participate in the selection process for as a junior developer. I hope I get some great mentors and colleagues to work with.

Sincerely,

Geraldo Nogueira
